SWIMMERS HAVE WORK CUT OUT

Everyone in Honolulu wishes the best of luck to Duke Kahanamoku and Vincent Genoves, in their game attempt to invade the East and win places on the American Olympic team. Last night the two crack swimmers left on the Honolulu, accompanied by Lew Henderson as business representative and "Duke" Miller as personal adviser, and after stretching their necks to the limit to get their mouths above the level of the encircling leis which nearly smothered them, Duke and Vincent managed to say that they would do their best, and that they felt they had a good show of coming back with first honors.

Well, "Here's hoping." However, it would be foolish for the sportsmen of Honolulu who have shown such keen and public-spirited interest in giving the boys their chance, and who have made that chance financially possible, to look on the task undertaken by the native swimmers as anything but an extremely tough proposition. It, as was first thought, the boys would have the chance to put in a couple of weeks' practice in tank swimming, get a little first-class coaching on the best way to negotiate the turns, and get accustomed to the "feel" of indoor swimming, to say nothing of getting thoroughly rested from the trip across the continent, their chances of success would be much brighter. Now, however, owing to the delay in learning the contest dates at this end of the line, the party will not arrive at Pittsburgh until February 21, to take part in the championships on the following day. It is even possible that the swimmers may be delayed, and not arrive on the scene until the day of the contest itself.

These are about the toughest conditions imaginable. Both men want to compete at Pittsburgh, Duke in the 220-yard event and Genoves in the 500. At Chicago on the 28th Duke alone will enter the 50 and 100-yard distances. If there is an 880 on the program, Genoves will enter that, but to date there has been no notification here of such an event.

Then, again, it's most unusual for a novice to win a big championship. The old hand at competition, where the prize is great, starts with about 18 per cent. advantage over the green man. It is not a question of nerve, but just a matter of mental poise, bred by familiarity with conditions, which adds enormously to a competitor's effectiveness.

All things considered, then, Honolulu enthusiasts shouldn't build too high on hopes of success for their favorites. Give them double the credit if they turn the trick, but don't be too badly disappointed if they are honorably defeated.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE MAT GAME

BY LLOYD KENYON JONES.

Jess Blomer of Des Moines, who is known on the mat as "Westergaard," bears the stamp of commerce. "Made in Sweden" Jess has endeavored bravely for years to master the dips, spurs and angles of the English tongue, but could never find anything in his own language to meet the requirements of the letter J. To Jess it is, and always be, plain Y.

Pearing ridicule, he says it softly; indeed, he goes over it with a hop, skip and a jump. Also, he steers tragically clear of all words that begin with J—and his vocabulary has been trimmed to twenty-five letters and what can be built from them.

Down in Knoxville, Tenn., some years back, Jess was booked in a match—and having ties that were near and dear to him in the Iowa city, the procuring of his mail was not unlike manna out of heaven.

Westergaard's traveling partner had "bent" Jess to it, by informing the clerk in the postoffice of Westergaard's accent. In fine, the twain had framed up on the Iowa.

"Any mail for Yess Westergaard?"

Jess asked as he squared his shoulders before the general delivery window.

"What is that first name?" the clerk inquired casually.

"Yess," Westergaard replied.

"That's what I said," the clerk retorted. "And the answer isn't 'yes,' but your first name—your Christian name."

"I told you," Westergaard replied, hotly. "It is Yess."

"How do you spell it?" the postal employe inquired gravely.

"Yess—yay—e-a—t."

"That doesn't spell anything to me," the clerk answered, as he dangled a couple of letters so that the grappler could see they were his property.

Then the conspirators started to laugh, and Westergaard's face was aflame with indignation.

"I'll bet you a dollar you can't say 'J'," was the challenge of Westergaard's partner, as they left the federal building.

"I can say 'Yay,'" Jess replied, "and now I have said it, and, by jimminy, give me that dollar or I'll yerk your bloomin' head off."

Jess got the "cass o'ce."

OPEN-AIR BOXING CARD LOOKS GOOD

J. H. Lemon's boxing show, carded for Saturday night at Athletic Park, looks on paper as though it should provide some first-class little sport. Three good bouts, totaling 24 rounds of boxing, are on the program, and as the men are well matched, the milling should be fast.

The ring will be pitched in front of the grandstand and well lighted by arcs, so that everyone gets a good view. Woodward vs. Clark is the main event, the men to go into the ring at the middleweight limit and to box ten rounds. Miller and Trier, eight rounds, and Howard vs. Abrams, six rounds, are the other attractions.

BARRON IMPATIENT TO MATCH GILMORE

"Soap Box" Barron, who, now that Soldier King has run everybody in Honolulu off their feet, has turned his managerial talents toward George "Sting" Gilmore, the Coast scrapper, is getting impatient because the talk that he gets about a match for his charge isn't the right kind of talk. Barron says that in the right game, money is the only talk that's worth listening to.

He has been trying to get a match with Bauersocks, the soldier scrapper who hails from Leticia. But although he has had several appointments, the Bauersocks faction hasn't shown up.

"I want to challenge Bauersocks, or any other man in the islands, for that matter, at 150 pounds," said Barron today. "However, there's no use going into this fight game if you don't play it right, and I shall insist on a forfeit for both weight and appearance before Gilmore signs articles."

CRACK GOLF PRO IS COMING SOON

Fred Riley, one of the best golf players on the Pacific Coast, who has figured prominently in every open event in his part of the country for the past eight years, and who has annexed first money in several of them, is coming to Honolulu. Riley will arrive next Wednesday, and will spend several weeks in Honolulu, during which time he will play the three local courses—Country Club, Moanalua, and Haleiwa—and be seen in a number of matches against Alex Bell, the Country Club crack, and the scratch amateurs.

Harold Giffard, George Angus, Frank Armstrong and T. Gill are all capable of putting up first-class golf on their home course, and a number of four-ball matches are being planned.

Bell is a formidable player on any course, but on his home green, with its tricky cross winds and sloping putting surfaces, he is little short of deadly. Riley, no matter what form he is in, will have to go some to hold his own.

Food Commissioner Edward B. Blanchard returned yesterday after a flying trip to Maui, where he went to take up the land that has been allotted to him in connection with the drawing made by the California settlement association which recently took up a number of blocks of Haleiwa land.

He immediately plunged straight into his work again and will be occupied most of the week in examining many local samples of food that have been brought before him. He is very pleased with the prospects in connection with the pineapple outlook.

DECIDING MATCH IN BILLIARD TOURNAMENT PLAYED LAST NIGHT

Hertsche and Chillingworth
Play Off Tie for First Place, Former Winning.

The billiard tournament which has been providing such good sport for the crickets at the Young Hotel, came to an end last night. J. H. Hertsche, manager of the hotel, pulled into first place by winning from C. F. Chillingworth, 50 to 37. The pair were tied with 5 won and 1 lost at the end of the regular, and last night's play was an extra game, on which depended the championship. The remainder of the schedule has been abandoned, as it can not affect the final result.

Following are the final standings:

HALEIWA FOR THE GOLFERS

Oahu Nose Out Laeti Rollers
Two Games to One—
Bowling Notes.

The golfing crowd is laying its plans for a week-end at Haleiwa this coming Saturday and Sunday, the attraction being a mixed foursome tournament, which is to be played over the Haleiwa course on both these dates. The tournament is attracting a lot of interest, and it's certain that a large delegation will be on hand.

The conditions of the contest are handicap medal play, and Alex Bell, the Oahu Country Club's professional, has charge of the entry list and the stroke allowances. He knows the capacity of every player of both sexes on the island, and the handicapping is sure to be as equitable as possible. Some of the players can only play on Sunday, and some do not care to compete on that day, so the medal rounds can be made either day, the first 18 holes only to count. A pair of handsome silver clocks, now on exhibition in Wickman's window, are the unusual and handsome prizes offered for the winning pair.

The Haleiwa course is in good shape at present, considerable attention having been spent on the greens of late. It isn't a long course, but it is interesting from the first tee to the ninth hole, and that's more than can be said of many golf links on which ten times the upkeep money is spent.

Add to the attractions of golf, a ming, and it's probable that the bait pleasant week-end out of town, with will catch most of the club-swingers who are able to make the trip.

By the narrow margin of 3 pins and 6 pins, the Oahu took the first two games from the Laeti last night, but in the final string the latter five got together with some very fair scores and finished the game with a margin of 32 pins. This made it two to one for the Oahu, under the league system of scoring, which makes every game count. The Laeti had 29 pins the better of the total pin-fall.

For the Oahu, Rantz was high score with an even double century and high average with 159, this figure being lowered by a poor 134 in the initial game. For the losers Tinker was the hero, with 173 and 166. He rolled very consistently.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Rantz had his curve working in the second game.

A. Howard, star bowler of the "Y" league and captain of the Oahu, has gone to the Coast.

The Oahu have an enormous respect for Tinker. When he puts "on" down the maple all his opponents "stop, look, listen."

The grandstand rollers are to be given their chance. Manager Wisdom announces that ladies will be allowed to witness all league games in future.

KAM RUNNERS LIKED COURSE

Varied Going Suited Them Better Than Straightaway of First Inter-School Race.

Over on their own stamping ground the Kamehameha distance runners shook out a couple of kinks yesterday afternoon, and scored a decisive victory over the Punahou cross-country squad. It was the shift, of course, more than anything else, that allowed the Kamehameha men to figure so largely in the first twelve to finish. They took kindly to the up and down hill running and to the constant change of direction, and seemed to run with more vim and interest than in the practically straightaway grind from Kapiolani Park to Thomas Square, over which the first race was run ten days ago. The Punahou team, with a few exceptions, seemed bewildered and did not use much headwork in judging pace.

J. Jones again crossed the line first. He is a beautiful runner, covering the ground with a long, rhythmic stride that simply eats up the furlongs. He is tall and large-boned now, but when he attains his full growth he will be a giant, and one that knows how to use his speed and strength, at that. Amos, another Kam runner, also gave a fine performance and took second place. John Watt, Punahou's reliable, was third. Watt is no slouch of a runner himself, and is grit clean through, but Jones and Amos are a little too speedy for him.

The course was not the Kam-Fort Shafter and return one, over which all the Kam distance work has been done, but was a winding route around the Kalihi district, with half a dozen turns and considerable variety to the going. The roads were slippery in spots, owing to the morning's rain, but on the whole the course was in good shape. Johnny O'Dowd, the little Kwa tennis phenom, was the second Punahou runner to finish. He took fifth place, after a game race.

The total score, counting the first man 1 point, the second 2, and so on, was: Kam 125, Punahou 176. Kamehameha won the first race by a margin of only 4.

FASSTH INJURED.

Joe Fassoth, one of Kauai's leading athletes, was brought to the Lihue Hospital last Saturday, suffering from rheumatism of the knee. His many friends will be pleased to learn that the case is not considered serious, and that he may yet be able to take part in the A. A. U. meet in Honolulu on the 22nd.
